WASHINGTON POLICE SAY JOINTS MUST GO

Alleged Speakeasy Raid Rroduced Many Bottles of Beer and Spirits

Hannah McMasters, who is charged with dispensing booze at an alleged restaurant on South Main street, Washington, came to grief Wednesday night when Chief Dulaney and his squad of officers swooped down on her. Hannah was brought to the lockup with her cargo of beer, wine and whisky. She was later placed in the jail and will be given a hearing on the charge. In the roundup were Chief Dulaney and Policemen Cummins, Haines and White. In this restaurant the officers secured 105 bottles of beer, most of which was on ice, eight half pints of whisky and wine and two pints of whisky.

Chief Dulaney stated last night that the beginning was just being made and that all gambling and booze joints would have to go.

POOR COLLECTORS AT WASHINGTON

Borough is Broke, But Has $30,000 in Leins on File

It is stated that Washington, which is financially embarrassed so that improvements have to suffer for lack of funds, has uncollected tax liens aggregating $30,000 on file in the prothonotary's office. The list includes land companies, corporations and wealthy business interests who have succeeded in standing off the tax collectors for years.

J. A. Magill, chairman of the finance committee of council, is compiling the uncollected liens. It is likely that when the list is put up to the city fathers a strong recommendation will be made to have these liens collected forthwith.

Geo. Snyder of McKeesport was in town Thursday calling on friends.

SEPT. 30 OPENING AT THE COYLE

Manager Coyle Selects Strong Drama to Begin Theatrical Season Here

THE LILY AND THE PRINCE

Thursday evening, September 30, marks the opening of the season at the Coyle Theatre. For this event Manager R. S. Coyle has booked Frank Holland's greatest success, "The Lily and the Prince." This strong dramatic success is portrayed by Miss Lucy Blake who, as leading woman, has reached an enviable stellar height in the profession, and Claude E. Kimball, who is equally noted in leading masculine roles. These are supported by a strong company specially selected for their respective roles.

The scene of the drama is laid in Italy, the time, the sixteenth century, when counterplot between the politician and adherents of the Vatican swayed the Italian govenment. It was a period when the toilets of the ladies and costume of the gentlemen were of the greatest elegance. The flower luxuriant country, the plots and intrigues, all lend their aid to the dramatist and scenic artists. The drama was written by Carina Jordan and is in four acts. The scenery is beautiful and the play is sumptuously staged.

The opening of the Coyle Theatre is always looked forward to with pleasure by patrons of this popular house. Manager Coyle is always alive to the interests of his patrons and secures the best attractions that conditions warrant. Many outside people are among the regular attendants and the opening of the season adds life and interest to the town.

RUMMAGE SALE AGAIN THIS YEAR

Church Women Arrange for Event Latter Part of Next Month.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church was held at the church yesterday afternoon and plans mapped out for the winter's campaign. The Ladies' Aid is an important adjunct of this church and aids very materially in providing ways and means for the furtherance of the work.

At the meeting yesterday the ladies decided to hold their annual rummage sale, which has been such a decided success in past seasons, some time in the latter part of October. Their annual bazaar will also be held in December in time to catch the holiday trade. Another feature will be the weekly markets, where the public can purchase home-made bread, pies, cakes and other delicacies. This will be held on Saturday in the window of U. S. Orange's store on Fallowfield avenue, starting tomorrow.

Windows Shattered and Woman and Other Passengers Cut by Flyidg Glass

CLOSE CALLS FROM INJURY

Attack Was Not Made by Real Strikers—Outsiders Took a Hand

The first show of violence since the declaration of the strike at the Monongohela plant of the American Window Glass Co., occurred Wednesday night, when a group of strike sympathizers bombarded a street car with stones and rocks because a strike breaker had boarded it and the conductor would not force him to get off.

When the 7:20 nothbound car stopped at Poplar street, in the West End district, a man hastily boarded it. There was a crowd standing around and all raised a loud cry of "Scab, Scab, Scab." One man, who seemed to be the leader of the gang, stepped up to the conductor and told him the circumstances, there being a strike at the glass house. He stated that the man who had just boarded the car was a scab and that the union men did not want the men in charge of the car to haul him. The conductor's reply was that he could not put the man off if he paid his fare, and that he hoped there would be no violence.

In the meantime the crowd outside again set up a howl of "scab" and threw several obstructions on the track so that the car could not move. [illegible] strike breaker the crowd on the outside became so enraged that missiles began striking the cars and this was the signal for a general onslaught and in less time that it takes to tell, half the windows in the car were broken and great excitement reigned both within and without.

One woman who was sitting on the side of the car nearest the trouble was badly cut by flying glass and a large stone which came through one of the windows, passed within an inch of the head of a small baby, in the arms of its mother.

All through this demonstration the man who was said to be a strike breaker buried his face behind a newspaper and attempted to read. He was very white and badly scared. The man who was sitting beside him, rose and went to another part of the car, not desiring to sit beside him, fearing one of the missiles which were coming thick and fast would miss the strike breaker and hit him.

After about fifteen minutes' delay, the conductor and motorman got the obstruction from the tracks and at last the car continued on its way, with the man who had caused all the trouble, comfortably resting in a seat in the corner.

The men who instigated the outbreak were not strikers, it is understood, but were men who worked in other parts of the factory and who are in sympathy with the cutters and flatteners.

Notice.

The Red White and Blue reception will beign Saturday, September 25. Will continue during the season.

A Republican Year.

This is essentially a Republican year. The triumphant passage of the Payne tariff bill, whereby the schedules were revised to meet the necessities of the people, has restored confidence in the industrial and business world, and the great depression, which caused such widespread disaster, is now a thing of the past. If the Republican party is to be blamed for this depression it should also get the credit for its removal, which is now most happily accomplished. There is no mistaking the signs of the times. Every indication points to a long and continued period of prosperity.

That being the case nothing should be interposed to interrupt this great wave of prosperity which is upon us. The Republican policy is ever alert to meet changing conditions and keep pace with the march of progress. It is this policy that has made Pennsylvania great as an industrial centre, and on its continuation depends its future development and prosperity. To Washington county in general and the Monongahela valley in particular, is Republican success imperative. From President Taft down to city and borough organizations in this district, is the administration pledged to the development of inland water ways, of which the Ohio river improvement is at the head. Republican success in State and county this year insures success next year, when a Congressman and State Legislators are to to be elected. On these, partcularly the former, depends in a great measure the execution of the policy that will carry the products of the greatest industrial centre on the globe to every part of the world at the lowest possible cost. This is why Repbulican success in Washington county this year is essential.

Think It Over.

In his speech at the meeting of the Republican clubs of the State at Altoona yesterady Senator Boies Penrose in making reference to the fiscal condition of the State and the system of taxation started some facts which should command serious attention on the part of every voter. Senator Penrose said:

"The Republican in Pennsylvania has nothing to explain or apologize for in this campaign. The recent State Treasurer has succeeded in getting the State out of debt and the Auditor General has collected more taxes than any of his predecessors.

"We pay more money to our schools than any other State in the Union. This money comes from the taxes levied on corporations for all purposes and no individual citizen pays one cent for support of the government. We appropriate for charitable institutions more than any other State, and to most of the counties the treasury returns more money than it receives from those respective counties. The condition of the treasury is not equaled by any other State."

In view of constant assertions that the taxpayers are being robbed by the State administration and that each citizen bears the burden, this statement of facts that cannot be controverted is a good thing to think over. Pennsyvlania has one of the best tax systems in existence, and there is less friction and less complaint here than in any other State in the Union.

Everybody Help.

In deciding to hold a trade carnival this fall the merchants and business people of Charleroi once again demonstrate their hustle and progressiveness. Whenever any opportunity presented itself for the promotion of any project or enterprise for the public good, the business people here were always alive to the situation. The present case is no exception.

The project having been launched, it is up to every citizen now, as well as the business people, to make it an unqualified success. It is enterprises like this that advance the interests of the town, and attract outside attention. Every citizen, whether in business or not, is vitally interested and should lend his aid. A live town appreciates property and makes real estate in demand. A dead town depreciates property vaules. Let everybody help to make Charleroi a live town.

Electric Sparks

If the mountain won't go to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain, and this is what the Charleroi merchants propose to do when there are prospects of trade drifting away from the town. That proposed trade carnival will do the work.

Theory and practice are having an inning in the controversy between the miners and operators over the use of explosives. The men who use the stuff know that disasters come from other causes.

Whenever manufacturers and mine operators get over the notion of trying to get something for nothing there'll be no more strikes.

Collecting money poured into rat holes at the point of a shotgun isn't such a bad idea after all. If more of it were done there wouldn't be so many promoters running loose about the country.

Over at Monessen the citizens kick about dumping garbage under their noses. Here in Charleroi we're not so fastidious. No one files any objections when the driver of the garbage wagon stops under the dining room window while he and his helper settle the north pole controversy.

Yesterday the State Homeopathists lectured on a cure for kleptomania. The society should be referred to Judges McIlvaine and Taylor, who have for some time found a most effective remedy. It takes from thirty to ninety days to effect a cure.

The woman who seeks to twine herself about a man's heart usually has a "stringing" object in view.

It's always a cinch that the man who hasn't any of the common everyday virtues to speak of, can be set down as good-hearted.

STATE CONSTABLES WILL ATTEND FAIR

These Officials to Help Preserve Order at Burgettstown Next Week

A detaachment of the State police will be sent to Burgettstown next Monday and will remain there for some time. The State officers will be on the fair grounds on the three days of the fair and all law-breakers will be brought to justice. Arrangements were made some time ago to have the State offiers come there again but owing to the trouble at Schoenville the troopers were all needed there. The troopers will be sent to Bugettstowat n this time at the solicitations of the fair board.

Secretary R. P. Stevenson reports that entries are being received very rapidly for the three days' exhibition which will open on next Tuesday and continue on Wednesday and Thursday. From the present outlook all departments will be full and overflowing. The racing card promises to be good. Many fast horses are entered. The rain last evening laid the dust in that section and the association feels that this fact alone will be responsible for a large increase in attendance.

Another Operation Avoided.

Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what that wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

LUTHERAN MAY FORM TRI-LEAGUE

Proposition to Have Three Towns Unite in Brotherhood Work.

While not so many people from out of town were present as expected the rally under the auspices of the Pittsburg Central Luther League at the church here last night was a decided success. The program as arranged was carried out with some slight exceptions, where some of the principals could not be present but sent others in their places.

One of the outcomes of the rally will be the probable organization of a Tri-League, composed of the leagues of Charleroi, Monessen and Monongahela. After the rally a social hour was spent which was highly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Charlotte Robison, 79 years old, widow of the late Tyre Robison, died at the home of her son, Van Robison, in Fallowfield township last night at 12:30 o'clock. Valvular heart trouble was the cause of her demise. She is survived by two sons and three daughters. These are Hiram and Van Robison and Mrs. John Rider of Fallowfield township, and Mrs. Louisa Carson and Mrs. Christian Deaterly of Charleroi. The funeral will be held Sunday at 2 o'clock at the Ebenzeer church, with interment in Crow cemetery.

They Didn't Have to Change.

During the years in which our pure food laws have been put into effect there has been a great hurrying and scurrying on the part of the food manufacturers to change their methods to make them conform to the law.

The Quaker Oats Company is a conspicuous exception. It was admitted that Quaker Oats was as pure and clean as possible and that it was an ideal food.

It is so cheap that any one can afford it and so nourishing that everyone needs it. The result of last year's experiments at Yale and other points where food values were tested is that Quaker Oats has been adopted by many persons as their food on which they rely for adding vigor and endurance of muscle and brain.

The Quaker Oats Company meets all demands in the way it packs Quaker Oats: regular size packages and the large size family package; the latter, both with and without china. 18

Harry Rush aged about 17 years, was taken to the Monessen-Charleroi hospital today. He was suffering from an attack of pleuro-pneumonia.

A Human Hiss Cowed the Lion.

At Cape Town a lion tamer was going through a performance in a cage with a full grown lion lately caught. Suddenly it was seen that the brute was putting the trainer through his paces rather than being put through itself. Softly, crouching and creeping, the big cat edged itself between the thoroughly unnerved man and the door of the den, fixing its victim with two rolling yellow orbs of flaming ferocity and sawing the empty air with its tufted tail as it crouched preparatory to springing. Many men among the audience, used to the ways of wild beasts, saw and comprehended, but only one man possessed the knowledge and the presence of mind to avert the apparently inevitable. Pursing up his lips as though he were going to whistle, he emitted a hoarse, low, rasping hiss. The beast heard and understood, for the sound was an exact imitation of the noise made by the giant constrictor when its huge body is coiled for the throw that never misses, that never relaxes and that no beast of the field is strong enough to withstand. Again and yet again the raucous sound rasped the stillness, and the angry brute drew back its head, its great eyes grew small and dull, the hackles [illegible] and stiffened on its back, and it cowered, whining, on the floor of the cage.

BUSINESS METHODS.

The Value of Imagination as an Industrial Asset.

Let us assume that tomorrow you decide to embark in the business of manufacturing a toilet soap to compete with some of the well known makers. It is important that it should have a significant or attractive name. But, right at the outset, you discover that it is almost impossible to secure any satisfactory name for a new soap. Its color, transparency and clearness suggest the title of "amber soap." Yes, surely, "amber soap" does have an attractive sound. But you cannot use the word "amber," for you find that this is one of a list of twenty-four possible names for a toilet soap preempted by registration as a protectionary measure years ago by one of the leading American soap makers. They have covered over a hundred names in the past quarter of a century, willingly paying the registration charges of $25 for every title. Of course they do not intend to use them. They register them to fight off competition, believing (and here is the important point) that no clever business man would embark in the enterprise of manufacturing a new soap when from the start he was prevented from employing the powerful weapon of imagination in giving it a suitable name. If an establishment like this, directed by some of the ablest heads in the business world, believes that it can discourage competition by simply depriving the would be competitor of the appeal to the imagination in the naming of his soap, how great a value must we attach to imagination in business?—Lorin F. Deland in Atlantic.

Poor Man!

She—I'm never going to speak to your wife again.

He—What's the matter?

"She promised to write to me two weeks ago, and I haven't heard from her since."

"Oh, well" (feeling in his pocket), "here's the letter. She gave it to me a fortnight ago."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Descent.

"Father, do men descend from monkeys?" asked an inquisitive lad.

"Yes, my boy."

"And what do monkeys descend from?"

"The monkeys descend—ah—from the trees!"—London Telegraph.

Not Guilty.

It is said that within 400 years gold aggregating $2,000,000,000 has disappeared from circulation, and the government would like to know who has it. We learn that the members of the newspaper fraternity are not suspected.—St. Louis Republic.

TWO CLEVER ROGUES

By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

One morning a gentleman drove up to a New York hotel in a cab, a trunk plastered all over with foreign labels was carried in, and the gentleman following wrote his name on the register. "Edward Cheltenham, Sheffield, England."

"Had a pleasant voyage?" asked the clerk urbanely.

"Very. Regular mill pond trip."

"Front! Show the gentleman to 50."

Mr. Cheltenham dined heartily, went to bed, arose betimes the next morning, breakfasted and strolled out of the hotel and down the street.

"What building is this?" he asked of one who was passing before an enormous structure.

"Criminal court."

Mr. Cheltenham stood with a hesitating look on his face for a few moments, then entered and took a seat in the courtroom. Several minor cases were disposed of when the case of Stephen Dale was called. Dale was charged with burglary. He had not been caught in the act, but running away from the bank at the time the robbery was committed and within a few hundred feet of the bank door. The hour of the arrest was midnight, and there was at the time no other person in the immediate neighborhood, so naturally the evidence against him, though circumstantial, was strong. Indeed, the judge appeared impatient to dispose of the case, which could only be expected to result in a conviction. It was about to be submitted to the jury when the prisoner, catching sight of Mr. Cheltenham, seemed transported with astonishment and relief.

"Your honor," he exclaimed, "there is a man who can prove what I have claimed—that when the robbery was committed I was not in this country."

"What man?"

"The gentleman in the gray suit, with sandy whiskers. I ask that he be called to the witness stand."

"What's your name?" asked the judge of the person designated.

"Edward Cheltenham."

"Take the stand."

"I protest against being drawn into this case, of which I know nothing," said Mr. Cheltenham, evidently annoyed. "I'm a British citizen just over from England on business and never saw that man before in my life."

"Take the stand," repeated the judge.

The Britisher obeyed, muttering something about the "blarsted country" and the rights of a British citizen.

"Your residence?" asked the judge.

"Sheffield, England."

"Occupation?"

"I am the traveling partner of a large cutlery manufactory."

Turning to the prisoner, the judge told him to state on what grounds he based his claim that the stranger could prove an alibi.

"The robbery was committed," said Dale, "on the 20th of June last. During that month I was a porter at Morley's hotel in Charing Cross, London. I carried the gentleman's luggage from his room down and out to a cab. I remember him especially because he gave me a very large tip—half a sovereign."

The judge asked the witness if he was in London and at Morley's at the time designated.

"I don't know," said Mr. Cheltenham. "I can't be expected to remember every place I visit. I travel eight months in the year. This man is an impostor and trying to use me."

"Do you keep any memoranda of places you visit?"

"Only an expense account."

"Have you your expense account covering that period with you?"

"I have my memorandum book of expenses at my hotel. I'll go and get it if you like, but I'm sure"—

"Take him to his hotel," said the judge to a constable, "get the book and bring him and the book back."

Mr. Cheltenham, bristling with British indignation, was conducted to his hotel, unlocked his trunk, took out the memorandum book, of which the constable took charge, and the party returned to the courtroom.

"Tell the jury," said the judge, "if you have any entry made at Morley's hotel, London, on or about June 20."

The witness, still indignant, fumbled over the leaves of the book and at last stopped apparently disconcerted. Then he said, "I do find an entry pertaining to the case on June 21 covering expenses at Morley's and"— He stopped, with a look of astonishment.

"And what?"

"'To porter, tip—half a sovereign.'"

Never was there greater surprise at a remarkable happening. Dale's vindication was complete. The judge gave a lecture on the care that should be taken in cases involving the liberty or life of the people, and the jury acquitted the accused without leaving their seats. Even Mr. Cheltenham was softened, though he declared that no such narrow escape of an innocent man could have occurred in England. The prisoner was released from custody, and Mr. Cheltenham was permitted to return to his hotel.

An hour later an officer of the court under pretext of carrying to Mr. Cheltenham his witness fee, but really to learn something of the Britisher, went to his hotel. Mr. Cheltenham immediately on his return from the courtroom had departed, bag and baggage. All the stations were telephoned to, and the same evening Cheltenham, alias Sparkles, alias Hunkey Jim, was arrested in company with Dale. The next day the two were summarily convicted of having robbed the —— bank and hustled off to the penitentiary to serve out a twenty year sentence.

Borough is Broke, But Has $30,000 in Liens on File

It is stated that Washington, which is financially embarrassed so that improvemets have to suffer for lack of funds, has uncollected tax liens aggregating $30,000 on file in the prothonotary's office. The list includes land companies, corporations and wealthy business interests who have succeeded in standing off the tax collectors for years.

J. A. Magill, chairman of the finance committee of council, is compiling the uncollected liens. It is likely that when the list is put up to the city fathers a strong recommendation will be made to have these liens collected forthwith.

SEPT. 30 OPENING AT THE COYLE

Manager Coyle Selects Strong Drama to Begin Theatrical Season Here

THE LILY AND THE PRINCE

Thursday evening, September 30, marks the opening of the season at the Coyle Theatre. For this event Manager R. S. Coyle has booked Frank Holland's greatest success, "The Lily and the Prince." This strong dramatic success is portrayed by Miss Lucy Blake who, as leading woman, has reached an enviable stellar height in the profession, and Claude E. Kimball, who is equally noted in leading masculine roles. These are supported by a strong company specially selected for their respective roles.

The scene of the drama is laid in Italy, the time, the sixteenth century, when counterplot between the politician and adherents of the Vatican swayed the Italian government. It was a period when the toilets of the ladies and costume of the gentlemen were of the greatest elegance. The flower luxuriant country, the plots and intrigues, all lend their aid to the dramatist and scenic artists. The drama was written by Carina Jordan and is in four acts. The scenery is beautiful and the play is sumptuously staged.

The opening of the Coyle Theatre is always looked forward to with pleasure by patrons of this popular house. Manager Coyle is always alive to the interests of his patrons and secures the best attractions that conditions warrant. Many outside people are among the regular attendants and the opening of the season adds life and interest to the town.

RUMMAGE SALE AGAIN THIS YEAR

Church Women Arrange for Event Latter Part of Next Month.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church was held at the church yesterday afternoon and plans mapped out for the winter's campaign. The Ladies' Aid is an important adjunct of this church and aids very materially in providing ways and means for the furtherance of the work.

At the meeting yesterday the ladies decided to hold their annual rummage sale, which has been such a decided success in past seasons, some time in the latter part of October. Their annual bazaar will also be held in December in time to catch the holiday trade. Another feature will be the weekly markets, where the public can purchase home-made bread, pies, cakes and other delicacies. This will be held on Saturday in the window of U. S. Orange's store on Fallowfield avenue, starting tomorrow.

STRIKE SYMPATHIZERS ATTACK CAR AT MONON.

Windows Shattered and Woman and Other Passengers Cut by Flyidg Glass

CLOSE CALLS FROM INJURY

Attack Was Not Made by Real Strikers—Outsiders Took a Hand

The first show of violence since the declaration of the strike at the Monongohela plant of the American Window Glass Co., occurred Wednesday night, when a group of strike sympathizers bombarded a street car with stones and rocks because a strike breaker had boarded it and the conductor would not force him to get off.

When the 7:20 nothbound car stopped at Poplar street, in the West End district, a man hastily boarded it. There was a crowd standing around and all raised a loud cry of "Scab, Scab, Scab." One man, who seemed to be the leader of the gang, stepped up to the conductor and told him the circumstances, there being a strike at the glass house. He stated that the man who had just boarded the car was a scab and that the union men did not want the men in charge of the car to haul him. The conductor's reply was that he could not put the man off if he paid his fare, and that he hoped there would be no violence.

In the meantime the crowd outside again set up a howl of "scab" and threw several obstructions on the track so that the car could not move. When the crew refused to put the strike breaker the crowd on the outside became so enraged that missiles began striking the cars and this was the signal for a general onslaught and in less time that it takes to tell, half the windows in the car were broken and great excitement reigned both within and without.

One woman who was sitting on the side of the car nearest the trouble was badly cut by flying glass and a large stone which came through one of the windows, passed within an inch of the head of a small baby, in the arms of its mother.

All through this demonstration the man who was said to be a strike breaker buried his face behind a newspaper and attempted to read. He was very white and badly scared. The man who was sitting beside him, rose and went to another part of the car, not desiring to sit beside him, fearing one of the missiles which were coming thick and fast would miss the strike breaker and hit him.

After about fifteen minutes' delay, the conductor and motorman got the obstruction from the tracks and at last the car continued on its way, with the man who had caused all the trouble, comfortably resting in a seat in the corner.

The men who instigated the outbreak were not strikers, it is understood, but were men who worked in other parts of the factory and who are in sympathy with the cutters and flatteners.

Death of Mrs. Guist Still a Mystery

Police Have Not Yet Located the One Who Fired Fatal Shot.

The police have failed to learn the identity of the party who Wednesday afternoon shot and killed Mrs. Catherine Guist aged 68 years near Monessen. It is believed the shot was fired by boys who were shooting at a target. She was in the yard at her daughter's home, when a bullet penetrated her right side and passing through her heart, came out near the left shoulder showing the party shooting the rifle was in a hollow below the house.

A Republican Year.

This is essentially a Republican year. The triumphant passage of the Payne tariff bill, whereby the schedules were revised to meet the necessities of the people, has restored confidence in the industrial and business world, and the great depression, which caused such widespread disaster, is now a thing of the past. If the Republican party is to be blamed for this depression it should also get the credit for its removal, which is now most happily accomplished. There is no mistaking the signs of the times. Every indication points to a long and continued period of prosperity.

That being the case nothing should be interposed to interrupt this great wave of presperity which is upon us. The Republican policy is ever alert to meet changing conditions and keep pace with the march of progress. It is this policy that has made Pennsylvania great as an industrial centre, and on its continuation depends its future development and prosperity. To Washington county in general and the Monongahela valley in particular, is Republican success imperative. From President Taft down to city and borough organizations in this district, is the administration pledged to the development of inland water ways, of which the Ohio river improvement is at the head. Republican success in State and county this year insures success next year, when a Congressman and State Legislators are to to be elected. On these, partcularly the former, depends in a great measure the execution of the policy that will carry the products of the greatest industrial centre on the globe to every part of the world at the lowest possible cost. This is why Repbulican success in Washington county this year is essential.

Think It Over.

In his speech at the meeting of the Republican clubs of the State at Altoona yesterady Senator Boies Penrose in making reference to the fiscal condition of the State and the system of taxation started some facts which should command serious attention on the part of every voter. Senator [illegible] said

"The Republican in Pennsylvania has nothing to explain or apologize for in this campaign. The recent State Treasurer has succeeded in getting the State out of debt and the Auditor General has collected more taxes than any of his predecessors.

"We pay more money to our schools than any other State in the Union. This money comes from the taxes levied on corporations for all purposes and no individual citizen pays one cent for support of the government. We appropriate for charitable institutions more than any other State, and to most of the counties the treasury returns more money than it receives from those respective counties. The condition of the treasury is not equaled by any other State."

In view of constant assertions that the taxpayers are being robbed by the State administration and that each citizen bears the burden, this statement of facts that cannot be controverted is a good thing to think over. Pennsylvania has one of the best tax systems in existence, and there is less friction and less complaint here than in any other State in the Union.

Everybody Help.

In deciding to hold a trade carnival this fall the merchants and business people of Charleroi once again demonstrate their [illegible] and progressiveness. Whenever any opportunity presented itself for the promotion of any project or enterprise for the public good, the business people here were always alive to the situation. The present case is no exception.

The project having been launched, it is up to every citizen now, as well as the business people, to make it an unqualified success. It is enterprises like this that advance the interests of the town, and attract outside attention. Every citizen, whether in business or not, is vitally interested and should lend his aid. A live town appreciates property and makes real estate in demand. A dead town depreciates property vaules. Let everybody help to make Charleroi a live town.

Electric Sparks

If the mountain won't go to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain, and this is what the Charleroi merchants propose to do when there are prospects of trade drifting away from the town. That proposed trade carnival will do the work.

Theory and practice are having an inning in the controversy between the miners and operators over the use of explosives. The men who use the stuff know that disasters come from other causes.

Whenever manufacturers and mine operators get over the notion of trying to get something for nothing there'll be no more strikes.

Collecting money poured into rat holes at the point of a shotgun isn't such a bad idea after all. If more of it were done there wouldn't be so many promoters running loose about the country.

Over at Monessen the citizens kick about dumping garbage under their noses. Here in Charleroi we're not so fastidious. No one files any objections when the driver of the garbage wagon stops under the dining room window while he and his helper settle the north pole controversy.

Yesterday the State Homeopathists lectured on a cure for kleptomania. The society should be referred to Judges McIlvaine and Taylor, who have for some time found a most effective remedy. It takes from thirty to ninety days to effect a cure.

The woman who seeks to twine herself about a man's heart usually has a "stringing" object in view.

It's always a cinch that the man who hasn't any of the common everyday virtues to speak of, can be set down as good-hearted.

STATE CONSTABLES WILL ATTEND FAIR

These Officials to Help Preserve Order at Burgettstown Next Week

A detaachment of the State police will be sent to Burgettstown next Monday and will remain there for some time. The State officers will be on the fair grounds on the three days of the fair and all law-breakers will be brought to justice. Arrangements were made some time ago to have the State offiers come there again but owing to the trouble at Schoenville the troopers were all needed there. The troopers will be sent to Bugettstowat n this time at the solicitations of the fair board.

Secretary R. P. Stevenson reports that entries are being received very rapidly for the three days' exhibition which will open on next Tuesday and continue on Wednesday and Thursday. From the present outlook all departments will be full and overflowing. The racing card promises to be good. Many fast horses are entered. The rain last evening laid the dust in that section and the association feels that this fact alone will be responsible for a large increase in attendance.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Paw Paw, Mich.—"I suffered terribly from female ills, including inflammation and congestion, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I can now say I am a well woman." EMMA DRAPER.

Another Operation Avoided.

Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what that wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

LUTHERAN MAY FORM TRI-LEAGUE

Proposition to Have Three Towns Unite in Brotherhood Work.

While not so many people from out of town were present as expected the rally under the auspices of the Pittsburg Central Luther League at the church here last night was a decided success. The program as arranged was carried out with some slight exceptions, where some of the principals could not be present but sent others in their places.

One of the outcomes of the rally will be the probable organization of a Tri-League, composed of the leagues of Charleroi, Monessen and Monongahela. After the rally a social hour was spent which was highly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Charlotte Robison, 70 years old, widow of the late Tyre Robison, died at the home of her son, Van Robison, in Fallowfield township last night at 12:30 o'clock. Valvular heart trouble was the cause of her demise. She is survived by two sons and three daughters. These are Hiram and Van Robison and Mrs. John Rider of Fallowfield township, and Mrs. Louisa Carson and Mrs. Christian Deaterly of Charleroi. The funeral will be held Sunday at 2 o'clock at the Ebenzeer church, with interment in Crow cemetery.

They Didn't Have to Change.

During the years in which our pure food laws have been put into effect there has been a great hurrying and scurrying on the part of the food manufacturers to change their methods to make them conform to the law.

The Quaker Oats Company is a conspicuous exception. It was admitted that Quaker Oats was as pure and clean as possible and that it was an ideal food.

It is so cheap that any one can afford it and so nourishing that everyone needs it. The result of last year's experiments at Yale and other points where food values were tested is that Quaker Oats has been adopted by many persons as their food on which they rely for adding vigor and endurance of muscle and brain.

The Quaker Oats Company meets all demands in the way it packs Quaker Oats: regular size packages and the large size family package; the latter, both with and without china. 18

A Human Hiss Cowed the Lion.

At Cape Town a lion tamer was going through a performance in a cage with a full grown lion lately caught. Suddenly it was seen that the brute was putting the trainer through his paces rather than being put through itself. Softly, crouching and creeping, the big cat edged itself between the thoroughly unnerved man and the door of the den, fixing its victim with two rolling yellow orbs of flaming ferocity and sawing the empty air with its tufted tail as it crouched preparatory to springing. Many men among the audience, used to the ways of wild beasts, [illegible] only one man possessed the knowledge and the presence of mind to avert the apparently inevitable. Pursing up his lips as though he were going to whistle, he emitted a hoarse, low, rasping hiss. The beast heard and understood, for the sound was an exact imitation of the noise made by the giant constrictor when its huge body is coiled for the throw that never misses that never relaxes and that no beast of the field is strong enough to withstand. Again and yet again the raucous sound rasped the stillness, and the angry brute drew back its head, its great eyes grew small and dull, the hackles fell and stiffened on its back and it cowered, whining, on the floor of the cage.

BUSINESS METHODS.

The Value of Imagination as an Industrial Asset.

Let us assume that tomorrow you decide to embark in the business of manufacturing a toilet soap to compete with some of the well known makers. It is important that it should have a significant or attractive name. But, right at the outset, you discover that it is almost impossible to secure any satisfactory name for a new soap. Its color, transparency and clearness suggest the title of "amber soap." Yes, surely, "amber soap" does have an attractive sound. But you cannot use the word "amber," for you find that this is one of a list of twenty-four possible names for a toilet soap preempted by registration as a protectionary measure years ago by one of the leading American soap makers. They have covered over a hundred names in the past quarter of a century, willingly paying the registration charges of $25 for every title. Of course they do not intend to use them. They register them to fight off competition, believing (and here is the important point) that no clever business man would embark in the enterprise from the start he was prevented from employing the powerful weapon of imagination in giving it a suitable name. If an establishment like this, directed by some of the ablest heads in the business world, believes that it can discourage competition by simply depriving the would be competitor of the appeal to the imagination in the naming of his soap, how great a value must we attach to imagination in business?—Lorin F. Deland in Atlantic.

Poor Man!

She—I'm never going to speak to your wife again.

He—What's the matter?

"She promised to write to me two weeks ago, and I haven't heard from her since."

"Oh, well" (feeling in his pocket), "here's the letter. She gave it to me a fortnight ago."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Descent.

"Father, do men descend from monkeys?" asked an inquisitive lad.

"Yes, my boy."

"And what do monkeys descend from?"

"The monkeys descend—ah—from the trees!"—London Telegraph.

Not Guilty.

It is said that within 400 years gold aggregating $2,000,000,000 has disappeared from circulation, and the government would like to know who has it. We learn that the members of the newspaper fraternity are not suspected.—St. Louis Republic.

TWO CLEVER ROGUES

By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

One morning a gentleman drove up to a New York hotel in a cab, a trunk plastered all over with foreign labels was carried in, and the gentleman following wrote his name on the register. "Edward Cheltenham, Sheffield, England."

"Had a pleasant voyage?" asked the clerk urbanely.

"Very. Regular mill pond trip."

"Front! Show the gentleman to 56."

Mr. Cheltenham dined heartily, went to bed; arose betimes the next morning, breakfasted and strolled out of the hotel and down the street.

"What building is this?" he asked of one who was passing before an enormous structure.

"Criminal court."

Mr. Cheltenham stood with a hesitating look on his face for a few moments, then entered and took a seat in the courtroom. Several minor cases were disposed of when the case of Stephen Dale was called. Dale was charged with burglary. He had not been caught in the act, but running away from the bank at the time the robbery was committed and within a few hundred feet of the bank door. The hour of the arrest was midnight, and there was at the time no other person in the immediate neighborhood, so naturally the evidence against him, though circumstantial, was strong. Indeed, the judge appeared impatient to dispose of the case, which could only be expected to result in a conviction. It was about to be submitted to the jury when the prisoner, catching sight of Mr. Cheltenham, seemed transported with astonishment and relief.

"Your honor," he exclaimed, "there is a man who can prove what I have claimed—that when the robbery was committed I was not in this country."

"What man?"

"The gentleman in the gray suit, with sandy whiskers. I ask that he be called to the witness stand."

"What's your name?" asked the judge of the person designated.

"Edward Cheltenham."

"Take the stand."

"I protest against being drawn into this case, of which I know nothing," said Mr. Cheltenham, evidently annoyed. "I'm a British citizen just over from England on business and never saw that man before in my life."

"Take the stand," repeated the judge.

The Britisher obeyed, muttering something about the "blarsted country" and the rights of a British citizen.

"Your residence?" asked the judge.

"Sheffield, England."

"Occupation?"

"I am the traveling partner of a large cutlery manufactory."

Turning to the prisoner, the judge told him to state on what grounds he based his claim that the stranger could prove an alibi.

"The robbery was committed," said Dale, "on the 20th of June last. During that month I was a porter at Morley's hotel in Charing Cross, London. I carried the gentleman's luggage from his room down and out to a cab. I remember him especially because he gave me a very large tip—half a sovereign."

The judge asked the witness if he was in London and at Morley's at the time designated.

"I don't know," said Mr. Cheltenham, "I can't be expected to remember every place I visit. I travel eight months in the year. This man is an impostor and trying to use me."

"Do you keep any memoranda of places you visit?"

"Only an expense account."

"Have you your expense account covering that period with you?"

"I have my memorandum book of expenses at my hotel. I'll go and get it if you like, but I'm sure"—

"Take him to his hotel," said the judge to a constable, "get the book and bring him and the book back."

Mr. Cheltenham, bristling with British indignation, was conducted to his hotel, unlocked his trunk, took out the memorandum book, of which the constable took charge, and the party returned to the courtroom.

"Tell the jury," said the judge, "if you have any entry made at Morley's hotel, London, on or about June 20."

The witness, still indignant, fumbled over the leaves of the book and at last stopped apparently disconcerted. Then he said, "I do find an entry pertaining to the case on June 21 covering expenses at Morley's and"— He stopped, with a look of astonishment.

"And what?"

"'To porter, tip—half a sovereign.'"

Never was there greater surprise at a remarkable happening. Dale's vindication was complete. The judge gave a lecture on the care that should be taken in cases involving the liberty or life of the people, and the jury acquitted the accused without leaving their seats. Even Mr. Cheltenham was softened, though he declared that no such narrow escape of an innocent man could have occurred in England. The prisoner was released from custody, and Mr. Cheltenham was permitted to return to his hotel.

An hour later an officer of the court under pretext of carrying to Mr. Cheltenham his witness fee, but really to learn something of the Britisher, went to his hotel. Mr. Cheltenham immediately on his return from the courtroom had departed, bag and baggage. All the stations were telephoned to, and the same evening Cheltenham, alias Sparkles, alias Hunkey Jim, was arrested in company with Dale. The next day the two were summarily convicted of having robbed the —— bank and hustled off to the penitentiary to serve out a twenty year sentence.
